SUDDEN COLLAPSE REMOVES BELOVED AMERICAN ENVOY

74-Year-Old Diplomat Held Affection of Entire French Populace for His Heroism.

Heart Surrenders to Relapse of Bronchial Ailment; Leaves Vacancy Desperately Hard To Fill

Paris, March 31.—(AP)—United States Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, who won the heart of the French people by his refusal to leave Paris when other diplomats fled the threatened German invasion in 1914, died peacefully at 4:10 p. m. today. He was 74 years of age.

From an humble business career among the farmers of Ohio, he had become governor of that state, was offered cabinet posts and was selected by two presidents as ambassador to France.

Not in Robust Health. Mr. Herrick had not been in robust health for some time, but was not seriously ill until 24 hours before his death. A slight bronchial attack, such as those from which he had suddenly collapsed, caused a heart collapse. His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Parmelee Herrick, was with him. His son was in Cleveland, Ohio.

Conscious until half an hour before he died, the ambassador was cheerful, chatty, and solicitous about engagements ahead. Then he suddenly collapsed. He never rallied from the heart stroke.

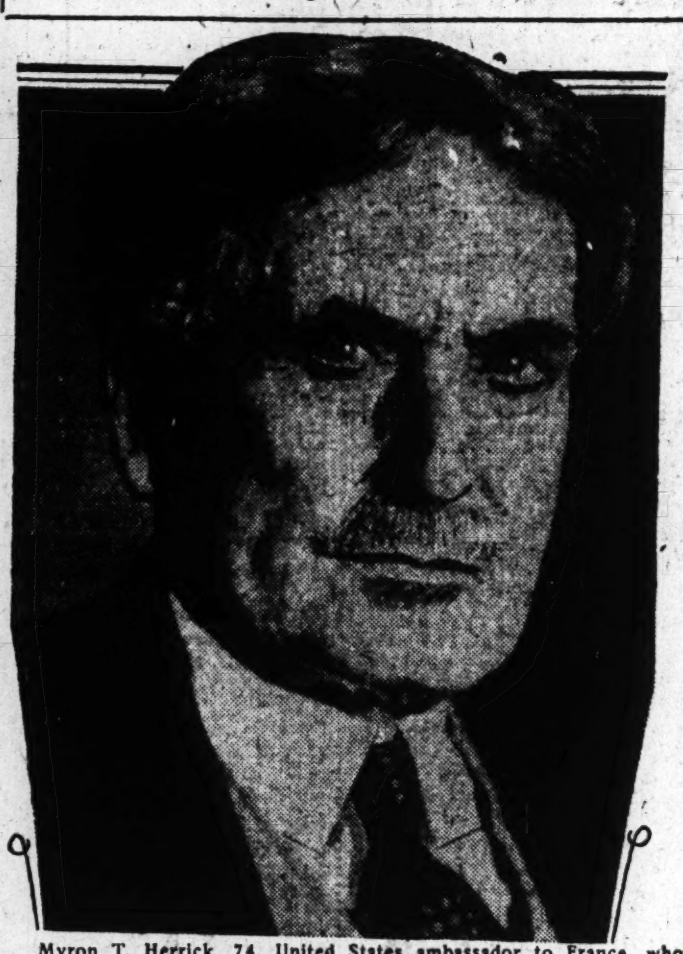

Mr. Herrick on Tuesday had walked to the Foch funeral in the Bois de St. Germain, where he had been in the front row. He was in excellent health at that time. The next morning he remarked that he was surprised that he had not cold, but, on the contrary, felt fine. That afternoon he had a golf game at St. Germain. On Thursday, however, he decided that he would not have his usual round of golf, and remained at home. He told one of his callers, "I feel that blacky-blank rough again."

The ambassador had a disturbed night on Thursday. His daughter-in-law telephoned Friday morning for Dr. H. Babson, assistant to the regular physician of Mr. Herrick, who was in southern France. The diagnosis of Dr. Babson was a bronchial attack, and he gave medicine to relieve the spasms of coughing. Desirous of rest, Convention of Southeastern Photographers Opens Three-Day Meeting at Henry Grady.

The annual Southeastern Photographers' convention, assembling members of the profession from every portion of the southeast, will begin today a three-day session at the Henry Grady hotel. An address by Richard N. Speight, London court photographer, will be the first feature of the meeting. Arts of the camera will be subjects of addresses during the convention, which also will see many entertainment features on the program. Several hundred photographers are expected to attend.

First session of the meeting will be opened at 11 o'clock this morning by Leah B. Moore, of Memphis, president of the association. Illustrated lectures and trade discussions will compose morning and afternoon programs, while a "mystery dance" to night will begin the program of entertainment.

Monday's luncheon will be a "get-together" affair: a "keep-together" luncheon will be held on Tuesday and an "all-together" luncheon will be held Wednesday. The annual banquet and dance and election of officers for 1929 will be held Wednesday night.

FRANK SPEER WED SECRETLY AUG. 31 TO ATLANTA GIRL

Frank Roy Speer, All-American tackle of the 1928 Golden Tornado football team of Georgia Tech, was secretly wed August 31, 1928, to Miss Frances Evelyn Shell, Atlanta girl. The wedding, kept secret seven months, took place at West Point, Ga. It was revealed last night by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Speer, of 1488 Bankhead Highway, N. W.

Frank quit Georgia Tech shortly before the close of the football season last year, and he and Mrs. Speer are now living at 731 Moreland avenue.

FEDERALS, REBELS EACH CLAIM WINS IN CHIHUAHUA AREA

Insurgents' Report That Gen. Almazan Was Retreating Contradicted in Mexico City Statement.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Both rebel and federal headquarters Sunday claimed important successes in Chihuahua but their statements were in direct contradiction. The rebels claimed their advance cavalry had entered Cuernavaca, 20 miles south of Ecatepec, and that Federal General Juan A. Almazan was retreating southward.

The picture was shown in opposite colors by the announcements made at Mexico City. There declared that the rebels had been driven from Cuernavaca after earlier surrendering Bellano, both north of Ecatepec. The insurgents were said to have fallen back to Santa Rosalia and to be closely pursued by federal cavalry.

Reports direct from an Associated Press staff correspondent with General Almazan bore out the announcements from Mexico City. His story, filed yesterday at Cuernavaca and delayed in transmission, reported a sharp clash between the rebels took over that town. Nine federal soldiers were killed and six wounded as compared with rebel losses of 50 killed, 12 wounded and 60 captured.

Aviation Figure Prominently. While the situation in Chihuahua thus was confused, airplanes figured prominently on two other points. A rebel plane dropped three bombs on the small federal garrison of Naco, on the Arizona border, where an attack had been expected for days. No damage was done by the bombs, one of which failed to explode. However, the plane returned later and this time it bombed killed two federal soldiers and injured another.

Federal aviators aided rebel troops at La Cruz, Sinaloa, but were driven off by heavy machine gunfire from the roofs of the town. One federal flier was mortally wounded, but his companion brought him back to Mazatlan. Both Mexico City and El Paso, Texas, reported that other rebel leaders were in the northern campaign to remove General Jose Gonzalo Escobar as commander in chief because of dissatisfaction over his withdrawal from the campaign.

El Paso also said that a

ATTEMPT TO OUST GOVERNOR BEGINS

House Will Hear Charges Against Huey Long Tonight; Louisiana Executive Unworried.

Baton Rouge, La., March 31.—(AP)—After a three-day Easter recess, the political tag-of-war between Governor Huey P. Long and the portion of the state legislature attempting to impeach him will be renewed tomorrow night in the house of representatives.

At that time a committee of 12 of the lower house will report on rules for the proceedings which the governor's enemies hope will result in his trial by the senate on 19 charges ranging from a murder plot down.

The session tomorrow night is expected to be perfunctory but plans were under way tonight for summoning witnesses so that the hearing may get under way as quickly as possible. If a majority of the lower house believes there is merit in the charges the senate will be called upon to try the case before the chief justice of the state supreme court. A two-thirds vote of the senate is necessary to remove the governor.

DR. J. E. TIDD, 69, DIES SUDDENLY AT MILLEDGEVILLE

Milledgeville, Ga., March 31.—(Special).—Dr. J. E. Tidd, 69-year-old, former president of the Georgia Drugists Association, died at 10:30 o'clock tonight. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Harriet Ray, of Orlando, Fla.; two sons, Calvin and John, of Milledgeville. Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, from the Methodist church.

FARM RELIEF PLAN NEAR COMPLETION EXPERTS BELIEVE

Giant Stabilization Fund, New Federal Bureau and Compulsory Crop Reduction Seen as Answer.

Washington, March 31.—(AP)—With the time at hand for the senate and house agriculture committees to begin the actual drafting of the new farm relief bill, there remains little doubt among leaders that the measure will closely follow the broad principles laid down in the republican platform and by President Hoover in his campaign speeches.

Their conviction is that the new bill will provide a federal farm board with powers broad enough to deal with all phases of the agricultural problem and to operate through commodity councils to be set up for each crop in need of attention. A revolving fund of $300,000,000 or more would be at the disposal of the board for use as loans to stabilization corporations, which would be set up on the recommendations of the commodity councils and the purpose of which would be to regulate the surplus so as to maintain comparatively steady price levels in the domestic markets.

Board With Despot Power.

The main work of the committee seems to be choosing among several proposals regarding the scope of the farm board's power. Some believe the board should be authorized to initiate action to remedy situations that may force in any commodity with the stabilization of the market and marketing agencies for aid. Others would have the board set only upon appeal by the interests affected when crop shows evidence of price decline through an excessive surplus.

The amount of the revolving fund also is a matter yet to be decided upon. Those who favor a fund in excess of $300,000,000 have argued that the money placed in the hands of the stabilization corporations ultimately would be lost and some, including Senator Brookhart, republican, of Iowa, have sought as much as $1,600,000,000.

Others believe that the smaller figure would be adequate because the stabilization corporations would have up surpluses in a falling market and dispose of them gradually as the prices recovered.

One other problem which the committee must decide is whether there shall be specific authority to deal in some way with the problem of production. Many farm leaders contend that a surplus already existed or was threatened.

A plan of somewhat ambitious scope has been suggested by Carl Yocum, former secretary of agriculture, by which crop production curtailment councils will be set up in all states where overproduction problem exists to create a surplus and these councils would work from the governor of the state down through small local bodies in direct contact with the individual farmer.

Others have suggested a national land utilization survey to determine what crops farm lands best were adapted to and on purposes of which would be to decrease acreage by taking poor lands out of cultivation and reforesting them at government expense.

Both the senate and the house committees desire to close their hearings during the coming week. Before doing so, however, Secretary Hyde is expected to appear before them and while his detailed views are expected from him, general outlines of the administration's view is looked for.

23 MINERS KILLED BY AN EXPLOSION IN BELGIAN MINE

Brussels, March 31.—(AP)—Twenty-three miners were killed today in an explosion at the Winterling mines near Liège, Belgium. The cause of the explosion has not yet been determined, but it is believed that the explosion was caused by a gas leak.

SOVIETS OUTLAW MANY THOUSANDS OF ARISTOCRATS

New Edict Confiscates Homes of Wealthy and Expatriates All Citizens Opposing Sovietism.

BY EUGENE LYONS. United News Staff Correspondent. Moscow, March 31.—(United News.) The soviet union is engaged in a dramatic, often tragic, "house cleaning" which is sweeping tens of thousands out of employment.

The proletarian dictatorship is jolting its broad ruthlessly into every corner and cranny where "formerists," as they are called here—former czarist officials, landlords, aristocrats, businessmen—may have found a temporary hiding place, intent upon driving them out and giving their jobs, occasionally their homes also, to workers and peasants.

Members of the pre-revolutionary upper classes who have proved themselves 100 per cent loyal to the soviet regime are spared, especially if they are specialists in any line the government needs. Those who, despite every working class origin, have shown themselves tainted with bourgeois ideas or methods are swept out as if they were mere grand dukes.

"Formerists" Made Outlaws. Every section of the soviet structure is agitated by this relentless campaign against "socially alien elements," including the communist party itself, the complicated governmental apparatus, the co-operative, trade unions, schools and universities, libraries and artistic organizations.

There is ample reason for panic among those who may be affected by the process. To be "cleaned out" is no slight matter here. It means that one becomes an outlaw, deprived of all social privileges and subjected to mercenary economic pressure. It means expulsion from the trade union, and therefore neither work nor the unemployment pittance while out of the hands of the state. It means a price for food, clothes, rent, education of one's children from the schools and universities.

Thousands Disqualified.

No one here blinks at the fact that great numbers are being driven into misery, despair and worse. It is regarded as a harsh but necessary measure to the soviet union's survival in the merciless civil war which is the

NO BOOZE BOUGHT AT DEKING HOME

Alleged "Purchaser" Denies He Told Undercover Agent He Got Liquor at Death Scene.

Aurora, Ill., March 31.—(AP)—Arthur Milroy, attorney for Joseph DeKling, announced tonight the "substitute" named by Boris Fairchild, day informant as actual purchaser of liquor from Mrs. Lillian DeKling, killed in the subsequent raid on her home, appeared today and denied the agent's allegation.

The raid was made Monday night on a John Doe warrant naming Fairchild as the informant. Another person, he told authorities yesterday, bought liquor at the DeKling home on March 16 with money he supplied.

Roy Smith, the deputy who slew Mrs. DeKling, and who was in turn shot by her 12-year-old son, Gerald DeKling, was reported out of danger at a hospital in St. Louis today. Hospital attaches said that the danger from gangrene in his leg had subsided. The coroner's jury is expected to go to the hospital to hear the story of the fatal raid.

What part the state will take at the inquest remained in doubt today. Charles W. Hadley, assistant attorney-general, who was assigned to the case after State's Attorney Carberry appealed to the attorney-general for co-operation because of the high feeling against him in Aurora, said he would attend but might not take an active part. Hadley added that he had not taken complete charge of the investigation because of the high feeling against him in Aurora, said he would attend but might not take an active part. Hadley added that he had not taken complete charge of the investigation because of the high feeling against him in Aurora, said he would attend but might not take an active part.

Any further part to be taken by the state will be determined when Mr. Hadley returns his report to Attorney-General Carberry after the inquest.

FEDERAL OFFICERS MAY BE INDICTED FOR 'SPY' PLANTING

Snook Writes Scathing Letter to Attorney-General as He Quits Office Under Fire.

WASHINGTON HEARS OF PLAN TO INDICT

Woman Attorney Charges Atlanta Warden With Improperly Admitting Visitors to Pen.

BY HERMAN D. MANCOCK. John W. Snook, warden of the Atlanta federal prison, quit his post Sunday night amid a series of threats of indictments and counter-indictments growing out of an investigation by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney-general, of an espionage system in governmental penitentiaries.

The system forced Snook's resignation when he protested last Saturday and Sunday night the following developments came in rapid succession:

1. Indictments in news dispatches from "Washington" that Mrs. Willebrandt will seek indictment of Snook on charges of permitting special privileges to certain prisoners by allowing them to see visitors. This move, it is said, is an effort of the department to divert attention from the investigation of espionage in the penitentiaries.

2. Probability that Snook will be asked to have government officials placed in the penitentiaries to investigate the activities of the inmates and to report on the same to the department.

3. Snook's resignation as attorney-general William D. Mitchell today in a scathing manner the policy of placing federal agents in the penitentiaries and declaring that American people will shortly pay a stop to the department's policy of infiltration of penitentiaries to place agents in federal institutions as bona fide convicts.

4. Denial that C. E. Brennan, a member of the Willebrandt investigation, is in Atlanta and that he is not qualified to handle the investigation.

5. Declaration of Snook that he requests that he not take with him any documents, records or copies of records from the prison was a further insult to the many I have already endured in the hands of the department's temporary power who charge of the great federal penal system of the United States.

6. Release for publication of the telegram which the warden of the penitentiary-general admitted in long distance telephone conversation Sunday night that she had sent to Snook, asking him for permitting newspapers to inspect the prison and telling him not to let the papers see the records of the institution when he left, and also the letter which Snook wrote to Mitchell.

7. Defense of the institution by the retiring warden, who declared the morale, health, sanitation and physical condition of the plant can not be excelled by any other institution of its kind in the world.

8. A grant majority of the 3,200 prisoners incorporated in the prison Sunday night staged a victorious protest at the warden's retirement by yelling, beating on their cell doors, crying out and whistling until 1 a.m. and Brennan are said to have been

The Sportsman

April Dreamers.

There are all the millions who are chained to desk or den, Those who've never looked upon the mountain, sea or spar, Yet of those who've roamed the world and traveled back again There are no adventurers who've traveled far so far.

Through their dusty panes they've looked each April, year on year, In their dreams they've known the roads beyond the last frontier, Tracked the open wilderness, the jungle and the thorn.

In their guarding walls of gray, held on one lone beat, They have seen the camp smoke as it circled, thin and blue, And in day dreams down the world, through the crowded street, They have found the canyons with the rivers tumbling through.

They have trailed the Amazon, hunted down the Nile, "Rolling down to Rio" where the armadillos wait, They have known Mombasa Land, mile on endless mile, Into open country through the city's guarded gate.

They have heard the whisper of the winds that tramp the glades, Each one with a secret of the forest or the streams, And above their weariness the glamour never fades, As they follow Romany along the road of dreams.

You figure it out.

The ways of the "heavenly Chinese" may be peculiar, but they have nothing on the modern fight game. Senor Paulino Uzcudun is paid $10,000 for boxing over a party who has to be wakened from a refreshing sleep at the moment he is supposed to be at ringside. Mickey Walker is guaranteed $50,000 for losing a fight and $100,000 for winning one. One pretty good-looking fighter by the name of Max Schmeling comes along and everyone has a contract with him or his manager except President Hoover, Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison and Mussolini. There must be a reason for it.

The Amateur Tangle Again.

Dear Mr. Rice: Will you be so kind as to tell us where the first of your three types of athletics can be found? I have a profound interest in amateur sport and in those who are entitled to engage therein, but cannot conceive of amateurs without money or restrictions or organization being the foundation of amateur sport. In fact, I do not believe they can engage in sport. Someone must furnish the funds to provide the equipments that are necessary to every form of public sport today. To include in your second-class organized amateur athletics and declare it in toto "a necessary evil" is to condemn every sport program and the schools, colleges, "y's" clubs and organizations generally who are not professionals or who do not put on professional sport programs.

To do away with organized amateur sport organizations is to make certain in a short time a "lack of funds" for the professionals in the fundamental athletic equipment and to make the professional sport impossible in years to come.

It is easy to offer a formula that will clear up the whole amateur situation for the good of sports of every kind. To develop and put in effect such a proposition would require some real work on the part of many and for something other than the financial returns. The trouble is not primarily with the amateur athlete, but with those ready and willing to sacrifice that individual for selfish reasons. An amateur does not get financial reward for his sport ability or reputation.

THOMAS E. WHITE, President Lansing Athletic Association.

It was not the intention of this column to suggest that organized amateur athletics were a necessary evil. The idea was to suggest that organized athletics, carrying a matter of game receipts, had to be accompanied by a number of evils, necessary or not. Gate receipts are necessary to carry out a complete sport program of equipment and playing fields. These must be paid for, and there is no other way to handle the matter, since so many millions are required to take care of the needs of such a vast army. But gate receipts, one way or other, are always accompanied by certain evils, which in this case are possibly the lesser evils.

Mr. White says that "an amateur does not get financial reward for his sport ability or reputation." Possibly not. But a lot of them do who live and play under the name of amateur and who are recognized as such in every form of sport.

The amateur situation is far from perfect and it is, also far from hopeless. But it will always be in some form of trouble when gate receipts run as high as they do now, no matter to what good use most of these gate receipts may be put nor how necessary they may be for the general good of the public at large.

That Weight Matter.

"You are all wrong," writes L. P., "about the weight starting on the left foot in addressing the ball. Any good pro will tell you that the weight must be evenly distributed on both feet. Any good pro won't, although some may like this method. Ever hear of the 'forward press' so often advocated as the back swing is started? Starting with a majority of the weight on the left foot merely gives a better leverage to pass it along to the right foot as the back swing gets under way. It is merely a trifle easier to let most of the weight swing to the right foot, if one starts it from the left. Try it out some day and you'll find out for yourself.

Examining the 35 degree schedule of the ground temperature a few days ago, we found that between March 10 and 30 the average of the ground temperature was 35 degrees. This is a very low temperature for the time of year and is a very low temperature for the time of year.

Most of the songsters wait until late in the spring to start north, and then they step on the gas so hard they reach their breeding grounds more rapidly than the northward advance of the season.

Rookies Scramble In Lookout Infield

Other Changes Likely Before Chattanooga Lineup Is Permanently Set.

Chattanooga, Tenn., March 31.—(Special).—Manager Jimmy Johnston, looking for an extraordinary season, has been in a quandary almost ever since he has had his exponents of the national pastime out for their spring airing. Stating matters simply, the whole cause of the worry lies around the keystones and shortstop holes in that infield of his.

Not that Manager Jimmy is worried over having someone to put into the two holes but to whom he is going to give the jobs. Right now one of the biggest evils war around this part of the country is going on out at Andrews field, and two pairs of gentia by the name of Wally Dashiell and Joe Longnecker, and Ray Treadwell and Bill Deitrick, are the cause of all the rumpus.

Longnecker and Dashiell are lined up on one side with Treadwell and Deitrick on the other, all four are doing their stuff around the lot like a million dollars. Treadwell cleaned the bases with a triple in the first exhibition contest of the season and Deitrick pulled some of the fastest fielding acts the ball birds have been treated to in many months.

Longnecker and Dashiell set the Southeastern loop on fire with their action, and they are looking for higher altitudes haven't slowed them in the least. Just what the result of the fracas will be no one knows, not even the manager himself, however, just as the clock will be in camp. There's no doubt about Wierman, Horne, Dumont and one or two others but the battle will be on at his own. Chick Howard kited his stock in the first exhibition game with the Skeeters by bowling over three solid hits in the first three innings, and he was on the hill.

Question in Outfield.

There is some question about the outfield as it stands at present. "Baby" Poff, "Chick" Taylor and Cleve Barrett have been getting the call on the regular side in all of the regular season ball games and in the exhibition games so far. All three look fair. The strength isn't there, however, that Manager Johnston would like to have. Jacobson has been socking the pill with fair regularity and so has Taylor but somehow the old alder has escaped the garden boy's net. There are rumors of some sort of a trade creeping around Taylor but nothing definite has come out.

In the last contest between the Skeeters and "them" Lookouts, Manager Jimmy set himself on the bench and let Ray Treadwell, who was the hot corner in his place. Whether this is in the fulfillment of a prophecy made by Jimmie earlier in the season, that he would come out at his own job, remains to be seen. In the meantime it's something for the fans to ponder over and come to the opening game for the season.

Transfer Possible.

There is a possibility that Dietrick may be transferred to the outfield and Treadwell placed on third, thus making his debut in big time stuff and last year in the University of Chattanooga, has shown such prowess at the bat and such a pleasing hitting style in the outfield that there has been nothing to do but to keep him in camp and line him up with the first stringers. He has showed it under fire on every occasion so far and it will take an awful shakeup to keep him off the club.

The flood waters of the Tennessee have completely sunk the regular club. Andrews field, placing the "Noogies" out in one of the amateur lots for their first week or so of exhibition. The flood has brought in all sorts of dead dogs, tin cans and roofs of houses. It will take Secretary Emerson and his cohorts some time to dispose of the season's activities as they are progressing just the same, however.

Tornado Grid Candidates to Start Scrimmages This Week

CRACKERS OPEN TORONTO SET TODAY

JACKET SQUAD ON LAST STAGE OF EARLY WORK

Three More Weeks of Practice Will See Grid Togs Put Away

Tech's Golden Tornado will sail into the final two weeks of spring practice at the Flats Tuesday afternoon with a drive which will see the Jackets engaged in stiff scrimmages almost every afternoon.

Captain Alexander, Tech head coach, has been running the boys easily through their first three weeks of the season, devoting most of his time to getting his charges into first-class condition for the hard times to come. Work on the fundamentals of the grid pastime was stressed, and every effort was made to develop candidates for the spots of Durant and his cohorts at the signal-calling post and those vacated by a host of linemen, including Frank Waddy, Raleigh Drennon, Kenneth Thrash, Frank Speer, and Peter Pund.

Centers Being Worked. Material for the center post has come in for most of the work, as an examination showed them to be rather off form on the pass to the backfield. Bill Fletcher and Alex set to work on the boys, drilling them hard in each practice, and now have several capable centers ready for action. The final test will come in the scrimmages this week, but it is expected that enough of the lads will come through this part of the grid to set the Jackets up in the snapping department for the season which starts in the fall.

End candidates have also been worked hard of late, and Captain Robinson, the man responsible for their behavior, is rapidly rounding the flankers into shape.

Baseball Hinder Work. Baseball has taken a number of the backfield candidates from their post on the gridiron, but Alex has rushed those on the field and has a number of likely candidates for the quarterback post. Colvin and Flowers, two of the lads who tried their hands at the running of the Grey Devil outfit last fall, have each been given a chance at the variety quarterback position, and several others are being trained to call the plays and run things well in the dummy scrimmages which have been held for the past week. Lateral action players, taken from the past year team, have also been tried out and found not wanting in most of the essentials for the job.

First of the team battles will be held Tuesday afternoon, according to present plans, and Alex's stated policy will be to drive the Jackets through the balance of the grid season. The boys have tried on their heavy clothes already, and have seemed eager to get down to business. They will have their chance, and will be instructed not to miss it, when the line-ups are announced Tuesday.

Ryder Cup Squad To Leave April 10

New York, March 31.—(AP)—The Ryder Cup team, American professional golfers, will sail for England April 10, on the Mauretania, to defend the cup won at Worcester, Mass., in May, 1927. Reservations on the liner have been made for the ten members of the team and officials of the professional golfers' association, sponsor of the expedition.

With Walter Hagen, British open champion, as captain, the team will include Johnny Farrell, open champion of the United States; Leo Diegel, P. G. A., and Canadian champion; Gene Sarason, former open champion; Horton Smith, youthful sensation of the winter golf season; Ed Dudley, Joe Turnesa, John Golden, Al Kapinos and Al Watrous. Smith and Dudley are the new members of the team, the others having been on the Worcester team, although Kapinos did not play.

Eight of the ten post will play singles and four against a team of British pros headed by George Duncan as captain.

Women Golfers Ready for Play

Pinehurst, N. C., March 31.—(AP)—The aristocracy of the women's golf world was here tonight for the opening tomorrow of the twenty-eighth edition of the north and south women's tournament.

With Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, R. I., national champion, perhaps the best liked of a field of nearly a hundred entrants, plenty of stiff competition was forecast from a galaxy of stars which includes Helen Hicks, the Hewlet, N. Y., sensation; Virginia Van Wye, winner of the mid-south event at Southern Pine last week; Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, defending champion; Marjorie Turpin, of New Orleans, southern title holder and many others.

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd is about the only woman headliner whose name is missing from the entry list. Miss Hicks, whose play was one of the high spots of the winter tournaments, and Miss Turpin will be making their first appearances in the north and south.

Eighteen holes will be played daily through Friday.

New Lacrosse Coach.

University of Pennsylvania has named R. Atherton Middleton as coach of Lacrosse, succeeding Archie MacFarlane, resigned.

Let's Swap Hosses.

No tears would be shed from the map at the top of this heading if Rell J. Spiller obtained a divorce from the Brooklyn National league baseball club and united himself to another major league group in companionate marriage. For several seasons Citizen Spiller has been operating under a working agreement with the Brooklyn folks and thus far all he has gotten in way of help has been sympathy. In return, the Cracker owner has given until it hurts: Walter Gilbert and Nick Cullop representing just two items of alimony.

It does not now appear that the Dodgers will be able to render the sort of help a major league club should give its minor league associate—vague promises, mingled with hard luck stories are all the baseball public can hear.

Certainly a working agreement with any other club in the majors could be no worse than this Brooklyn deal, and almost any other connection might produce a player or two to go to the post. Just how deep the Cracker management is committed to the Dodgers is not known, but some settlement should be made and the agreement ended.

UNCLE ROBBY MEANS WELL.

No doubt Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Dodgers, means well. No doubt he wants to help his Atlanta associate. But it is material scarce and crippled in the Brooklyn camp, and there are directors—a whole sewing circle of them—back in Flatbush who must be satisfied.

No suspicion of unfair dealing can be laid at the Brooklyn doorstep. It is simply a case of tough luck. Just now any player that would help Atlanta is too valuable for the Dodgers to turn loose.

The players that would put the Crackers in good shape are Nick Cullop, Al Lopez and a good left handed pitcher or two. Brooklyn needs all of them.

EDUCATIONAL NOTE.

A so-called working agreement between a major league club and a minor league club in a general way may be explained this way: In consideration of sending optional players to the minor league club, the major league club has the first choice of the minor league club's players at the close of the season.

Hence it is easy to see why agreements cannot well be made by one minor league owner with more than one big time organization. First choice of players is the joker. On the other hand major league clubs may have agreements with any number of minor league owners.

SUCCESS OR FAILURE.

Sound connections with the majors spell success or failure in the Southern league. Birmingham and Washington, New Orleans and Cleveland are examples of profitable major-minor league arrangements.

Once upon a time the Crackers had a great profitable verbal contract with the Yankees—and won a pennant thereby.

Whether it is too late for the Cracker owner to do anything about his connection I do not know. Nor am I informed whether he wants to change the arrangement or not. Maybe he is satisfied, and possibly the author is the only lad who is worried. Recently I voiced the hunch that Cullop will be with the Crackers by June 15. That still goes. Does the foregoing howl? The Crackers need Cullop right now and June 15 is a far piece away.

DOPE ON THE PELLS.

Bill Keefe, sporting editor of the Times-Pic, reveals in a letter just what the Pelican situation is. It reveals how it feels to be sitting pretty with a major league club that is well supplied with material. Bill writes:

My dear Ed: You ask me what the spring games prognosticate for the 1929 Pelicans. And I am compelled to say they promise nothing. Why?—you'll ask them.

Well, this Cleveland connection of the Pelicans has been the most satisfactory one ever, old college chum—I mean chum—Alex Heinemann has ever had. There has been a smile on "Heine's" face all spring (except on an occasion the other night when they tried to slip him a $3200 bouquet check the time the Roosevelt Hotel here entertained the entire group of hungry Clevelanders and visiting and local newspapermen)—I say "Heine" has been smiling and all his smiles are not for the reason that of Judge Landis and his smile under Johnny Dubbs' 1929 plans.

Last year the Clevelanders tried to help the Pelicans mightily. They did help lots, too, though the year before they helped more. This spring "Heine" is just sitting and waiting. He seems to feel sure that when the Tribe breaks camp here the Pelicans will have a ball club. That's why I ask you to hold up a bit, your request for dope on the Pelicans. Right now, all I can tell you and the Atlanta fans is this: The Pelicans have a prime pitching staff of veterans; they have one good catcher, one good second baseman and two good outfielders (one here and one coming). If you can make up a pennant contending team from that, go ahead.

But I'd rather wait to see what the outfit looks like when Cleveland leaves. I don't think we'll get Tucher or Morgan back; and of course not Carl Lind. We may get Ray Gardner and could use him. The Tribe has lots of surplus material in camp this year, so you can judge by the manner in which they stepped out and bought high-class ball players like Falk, Porter and Averill.

And as long as "Heine" isn't worrying, why should the rest of New Orleans?

World's Skaters May Vie In U. S. Figure Tourney

Stockholm, March 31.—(AP)—The world championships for figure skating, men, women and pairs, probably will be held in the United States next winter.

The International Skating union, of which the United States and Canada are members, has received an invitation from the Amateur Figure-Skating Association of the United States for these events. A wish to visit America was around among European skaters last year by the visit of the American competitors in the winter Olympic games.

MISS MADDOX AND MRS. BECK BATTLE TODAY

Atlanta Women To Play Finals of Golf Tournament at Druid Hills.

BY DICK HAWKINS. Miss Margaret Maddox and Mrs. L. H. Beck have finally decided to shoot a few blooming shots among the blooming dogwoods at Druid Hills. This fact might not be of prime importance but for the fact that the outcome of the 18-hole match will decide the winner of the Atlanta Women's Golf Association tournament held at the hills last Tuesday.

On that date Mrs. Beck and Miss Maddox led the Class A golfers with net scores of 82 strokes each and the affair was called a draw. The spectators took their rain checks and decided to wait the pleasure of the principals for a decision. That pleasure has been announced and the play-off will take place this morning at about 9 o'clock, central standard time.

Mrs. Beck's Handicap. In the tournament play Mrs. Beck carried a handicap of 10 strokes and Miss Maddox had two strokes. In the play-off Miss Maddox will have to give her opponent two-thirds of the difference between 10 strokes and 2 strokes. Never being a great hand at higher mathematics I leave the exact handicap to your own calculation or that of Harry Stevens, professional at Druid Hills. I could never be a golf professional because I could never come to any definite conclusion regarding two-thirds of eight strokes.

Simply because I am supposed to select a winner in the match does not necessarily mean that I will do so. If I were forced to make a selection Miss Maddox would be the choice. She is hitting the ball well and has been playing a lot of late with no signs of weakening. Giving away as many strokes as she will to Mrs. Beck is a great handicap but I believe she has the golf to surmount this obstacle.

Easter Golfers. A hurried tour of several of Atlanta's golf courses Sunday afternoon convinced the writer that his estimate of the number of golfers to play on Easter Sunday was low rather than high. Smiling the smiles of satisfaction, several professional golfers who maintain shops at the various courses, beamed their satisfaction at the day's trade.

Even Richard Hickey, University of Georgia's unpaid coach, broke his solemn oath again and hit a few links on this Easter Sabbath. Every time Richard misses a golf after aiming long and carefully in its direction he decides to quit the blasted, blooming game but always he weakens and Sunday saw one of these weak moments. Among the society few games in golf might be the following: W. D. Doak, well-known confectionery magnate, entertained at East Lake Sunday afternoon at an informal golf party. The guest of honor was Mrs. W. D. Doak. Under the circumstances you have heard me bragging and hesitating to tell the harrowing details of the party but after adroit questioning I gleaned the following facts:

Mrs. Doak shot an 88 from the men's tees with three sevens on the card. She gave her lord and master a most unimpressive beating and made him like it. The guest of honor was Mrs. W. D. Doak. Vienna To Face Test Wednesday

Chicago, March 31.—(Special).—Contrary to all established precedent which decrees that the final game shall determine a tournament winner, the 1929 national high school basketball title is likely to be determined in the first round in the Stagg International Basketball tournament, which opens here Tuesday morning.

Vienna, Georgia's delegate, and Johnston City, the Illinois champion, co-favorites to win the tourney, have been thrown together by the draw into a first-round game in which one will be eliminated.

The contest, the winner of which should encounter little difficulty in moving on to the final round, is to be played at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, later than several of the second-round contests. That has been well-served by participation in former national tournaments here, was expected to follow its usual practice of the first few games in its stride. But the same was expected of Johnston City, which rates as a strong combination solely by virtue of the strength that it knows it will be required to win a state championship from the teams that represent the high schools of the state.

Whichever of the teams is eliminated from the running for the national title by the inevitable first round defeat, it will be known that it has become the trophy favorite to win the consolation tourney in which all defeated first-round losers participate.

The ball can be observed in the lower right-hand corner just after Lieutenant Proctor has hit it.

Proctor Outstanding Fort Mac Polo Player

Member of Infantry Team Has Colorful Career on Polo Field While in Service.

The little white sphere will leave the hand of the referee in the opening game of the polo season early next month at Fort McPherson. At No. 3 for the Fort Mac squad will be elongated, hard-hitting, hard-riding Lieutenant Gilbert Proctor, who was an especial thorn in the side of the opposing teams last year. Riding his clever little pony, Kanaka, which is a Hawaiian-bred animal and savvies more polo than most players, he is a sensational rider, and to his smashing hits and well-placed shots Fort Mac owes more than one victory.

Proctor's polo history dates back to 1921 when he was a member of the fourth infantry team at Camp Lewis, Wash. The following year found him playing a superior brand of polo in Honolulu as a member of the nineteenth infantry team. He captained the squad for a couple of years, and still found time to play a good defensive No. 4 with the Shamrocks in the junior championship of the Hawaiian islands.

Army orders, causing a change of station, placed him in California where he was a member of the first team to play at the opening of the Will Rogers Polo field at Beverly Hills with Will Rogers, Hal Roach, and Dr. Harry Wilson as his teammates. At No. 3 of the Fort Lewis, Washington, polo team, he played in the Northwest International championship at Vancouver, British Columbia, where the Fort Lewis team tied with the Portland Polo and Hunt Club and the Vancouver Polo Club for the championship.

Frederick, who is a side-decamp to Major General Richmond P. Davis, was a polo playing family for his father was one of the pioneers of the game back in 1868 in Santa Monica, Cal., where he played with a team of Englishmen for the first game of polo ever staged in the state.

Buffalo, Cardinals, Reds to Play Here

Strenuous Week in Store for Atlanta Team; Hitting Expected to Improve.

BY BEN COTHMAN.

Atlanta's Crackers this afternoon encounter their first professional opposition of the season when they meet the Leafs of Toronto at Spiller's park at 3 o'clock. The Leafs are the beginning of an arduous week for the Crackers, for they will be here for two days and following them will be Cincinnati Wednesday, Buffalo Thursday and the St. Louis Cardinals Friday and Saturday.

The Leafs are the beginning of an arduous week for the Crackers. They will be here for two days and following them will be Cincinnati Wednesday, Buffalo Thursday and the St. Louis Cardinals Friday and Saturday.

Willbur Good, boss of the local professional nine, will see everything he has in an attempt to win from the visiting nine. Rainy weather of the last week or 10 days has brought pitching arms to the stage where they are quite flexible and ready for "bearing down." Atlanta pitching selections for this afternoon have been announced as Joe Klefer, the stocky Texas leaguer, to start, and Chas. Blithen, handy man of last year, to end the game. Both are right handers and if they show anything like the form of which they are capable, they are most likely to be hard to hit.

Games of Past Week. During the past week the Crackers played three college games, winning one and losing two through inability to hit the offerings of the ambitious collegiate moundsmen. This failure has been made to lack of timing and with the squad in the slump it is now, it is expected that the hitting will pick up a bit.

Not that the Crackers at this stage, are murderous at the plate. They're not. But the club, as it stacks up now, should be able to hit fairly effectively and consistently. If Spiller grab off a couple of outfielders who can really smash the ball, then his club is in luck. In the last game played, which was against Georgia Thursday afternoon Mr. Good had a brand-new batting order, and whether or not it will prevail this afternoon is not known. The new combination served to bring only four hits to the Crackers.

Leafs Reach City. The Leafs, headed by Manager Steve O'Neill, St. Louis Brown catching star, rolled into the city Sunday morning, and they must have all had friends in the city for none of them were found. In efforts to get hold of O'Neill and discover who would pitch for Toronto were fruitless. Arthur McHenry, former University of Georgia pitcher, who will make an appearance today most likely, being on the Toronto roster. Claude Satterfield, recently graduated from the University of Georgia, is one of the Toronto pitchers. In 12 games with the club last year he won two games and lost none.

Rolly Naylor, once an Atlanta pitcher, is on the squad, coming to the Leafs after winning 10 games and losing 12 with Tulsa of the Western league last year. Walter F. Leverenz, who was obtained from Buffalo by Atlanta, will make his debut, also hooked up with Toronto.

Jackets Defeat Indians at Prison

Scoring four runs in the ninth inning, the Atlanta Steel Jackets defeated the Indians of the Western league last year. Walter F. Leverenz, who was obtained from Buffalo by Atlanta, will make his debut, also hooked up with Toronto.

Price, Jacket second baseman, was responsible for the ninth-inning rally. With two men on base he hit a long fly over the left fielder's head good for three bases, scoring the two runners before him. The Indians at the beginning of the inning were leading 4 to 3.

Both teams were credited with 10 hits each, but the Jackets were able to make their hits count for runs in the pinches, while the Indians failed. Score by innings: R. H. E. Indians 400 000-10-1-1 Jackets 050 000-0-7-1-0

Duckpins Ousting Ten Pins in Sports

About 21 years ago the game of duckpins was introduced in the east for the benefit of the women bowlers. It was a less strenuous sport. Now this game monopolizes the alleys in Baltimore and Washington, and has moved down the Atlantic seaboard as far as South Carolina, and spread as far as Pittsburgh. There also is some duckpin bowling on the Pacific coast.

'Old Man' Jack Britton To Say 'Farewell' Here With Gloves

Forty-two years sit lightly on the compact shoulders of Jack Britton. The "old" welterweight champion of the world, the only man who ever won that title twice, is on what he styles his farewell tour before going to Europe; just like Mike Schumacher-Hink or Adolph Ficht.

But one hardly imagines that this really is Old Man Jack's farewell tour just as the distinguished diva returned again and again to sing their evening songs. Old Man Jack will be making several times more to play a tune on the empty benches of the younger generation of fighters. He called by The Constitution office last night to say hello.

Old Man Jack fights young Willie Pitsney here next Thursday night in the main event. Old Man Jack will take Willie through another boxing class, just as he has been generally considered a "punch" on his "farewell" tour. And after 400 fights, Old Man Jack remains possibly the greatest boxer the division ever developed. Atlanta fans who date back to the days of Jim Lynch, Harry Staton and Harry Norton, old-time promoters, will no doubt be glad to gaze at what is left of the ancient warrior. And those who I say at the number in Miami recently, Old Man Jack has plenty left.

THE MEDBURY FORT MURDER

By GEORGE LIMNELLIUS

STORY.

Major Hugh Preece, of the Royal Army Medical Corps, had been transferred to London. He is about to leave the city tomorrow. He takes his wife and children for a ride with Lieutenant Lapeau, who is to be transferred to the same corps as Preece. The lieutenant is suffering from a mild fever and the major prescribes a dose of quinine. Preece remembers that he has seen this man before under extraordinary circumstances. He recalls his first meeting with him in the hospital at the front. Then he had been sent to West London, and his baggage at parties from the front.

On his return to London Preece again met Lapeau. He asks her to marry him and she refuses. Shortly afterwards she married Thomas Smith, Preece's neighbor. The Smiths, who are one of his best friends, are now in the hospital.

A few days later Preece and Hugh Preece, who had been transferred to the same corps, were sent to the front. Preece, who had been transferred to the same corps, was sent to the front. Preece, who had been transferred to the same corps, was sent to the front.

he call on anybody in the neighborhood? "Not to my knowledge, he didn't. No. He asked me a lot of questions, though. Come to think of it, he was particularly interested in the people at Mawne Park—Sir Tremayne Roman and his lady. Very taken up with them, he was. And, yes, I do call to mind hearing how he'd struck up with Nancy Beasley—a nursery maid at the park—and went for a walk with her on the Sunday evening. Young Ted Cooper, who's keeping company with her, was properly with him about it in the bar here one night."

Paton inquired the way to Mawne Park from the genial landlord and bidding him a cordial farewell, set out. He came to the gates in ten minutes' walking. A stone dog holding a shield between its forepaws crowned a pillar upon either side of the ornamental iron gates. The detective passed through them. The afternoon was fine and not oppressively hot. Paton slackened his pace, enjoying the cool breeze, the beautiful wooded park, and the glimpses of the dilapidated eighteenth century house seen ever and anon through avenues of trees. He was feeling well pleased with what he had learned from the talkative landlord. The decision to investigate the connection existing between the murdered officer, Lady Roman and Preece was a long while it might prove to be a hard nut to crack; but as far as the evidence pointed to a mystery which, when revealed, might disclose an important clue to the identity of the criminal. He was walking on the grass beside the drive and had come to the edge of a clearing. From the other side of the copses came the sound of voices, laughter and the barking of a dog. Paton peered cautiously from behind the shelter of a rhododendron bush, feeling (and, indeed, looking) like the detective of mid-Victorian tradition. He was watching a young girl in a nurse's uniform was seated on a tree stump, laughing and applauding while a sturdy boy about 12 years old was chasing a small Scottish terrier. The terrier kept turning and twisting and dodging, every now and then uttering shrill excited barks as the child flung himself forward and sprang on the ground in his efforts to catch the small animal. The nurse shouted, "Catch hold of Hamish quickly."

Paton wisely waited till the child had seized the dog by his collar before advancing. "Nice little chap, those Scottish," he remarked, "but they don't like strangers, do they?"

"No, sir," the girl replied, smiling archly at him. "They don't."

Paton observed her carefully. He reckoned himself a good judge of character and generally found his first impressions surprisingly correct. Village trained, a bit of a flirt, ideas above her station, not altogether a fool, but easily impressed by a strong personality was his rapid summing up. He determined on the direct method of approach.

"I am Detective Inspector Paton of the criminal investigation department, Scotland Yard," he said. "Your name is Nancy Beasley, is it?"

"Yes, it is," the girl's mouth sagged open, her eyes widened.

"Yes," she gasped, "how?"

"Never mind," Paton's voice was stern. "You knew Mr. Lapeau?"

She nodded, unable to speak.

"When and how did you meet him?" the detective pursued.

"I—I—the girl was almost in tears.

Paton allowed a more genial tone to creep into his voice as he said: "Don't be alarmed. Just answer my questions."

"Of—of course, I read about the murder. I thought it might be him, but then I thought it was too dreadful to happen to a gentleman like him."

"It was him."

Spring Calls Youth Outdoors as Easter Dawns

Photos by George Cornett and Bill Mason, Staff Photographers.

Easter dawns and a million rabbits scamper to their homes, leaving a million eggs behind for the tiny, searching hands of a million delighted youngsters, all of whom are not interested entirely in the search. For spring is here, and with the blossoming out of the green buds, something blooms in a man's soul that turns a wary eye toward the opposite sex. Oh, well! You see what the first days of spring did. At the top is a small portion of the hundreds who turned out to enjoy the boating and playground privileges of Grant Park. The tiny young man below heard the call of spring louder than his companions while the object of his bashful, silent adoration from behind the tree trunk, also is not the least bit interested in looking for rabbit fruit. An Easter egg hunt at Piedmont Park, given by the American Rescue Workers, is shown at lower right.

LARGE LOT LEASED FOR FREE PARKING AREA IN WEST END

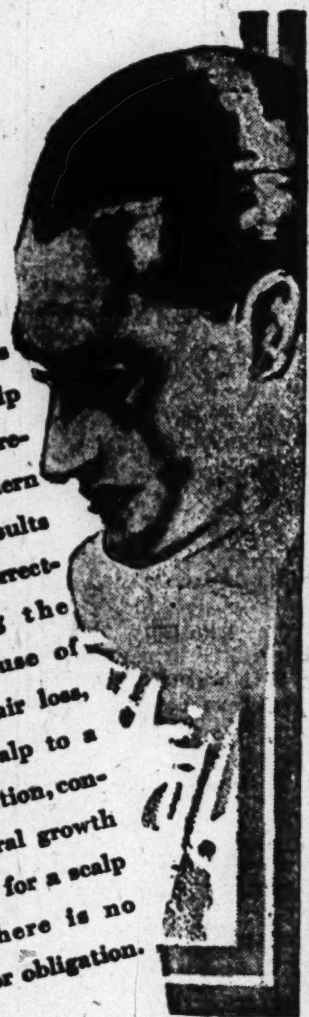

Offered as possible relief for the heavy traffic congestion at Lee and Gordon streets, the West End Business Men's Association has leased a large vacant lot on York street, near Lee, at Station A postoffice, which is offered free of cost to West End business houses and shoppers at this center. It is announced by Lem Falkner, on behalf of the business men. Large signs have been erected on the lot stating that the space is free without limit.

"If this free parking space fails to relieve the congestion we will be compelled to ask for a short period parking ordinance about Lee and Gordon streets," said Hewitt Chambers, president of the association.

Atlanta.

What promises to be one of the liveliest and most delightful comedies of the season will be seen in Atlanta tonight for the first time when the Foliesville All-Star Players present "Skidding" as the third bill in their successful season of stock at the Atlanta theater. "Skidding" tells the story of a typical American family skidding along the edge of disaster because of the selfishness and stubbornness of its individual members. The central love theme is supplied by a very modern daughter with ambitions for a political career and an old-fashioned woman whose fiancé with ideas that woman's place is in the home.

Keith's Georgia.

Keith's Georgia presents this week "Chinatown Nights," taken from the famous story, "Tony War." This is a Paramount all-talking picture with Wallace Beery, Florence Vidor and Warner Oland. "Chinatown Nights" is a story of a white boy of Chinatown who wins the love of a white society woman. She sacrifices everything for him but, not until she is dragged into the mire of the Chinese underworld, does he awaken to his love for her. This new show is completed by four acts of Keith vaudeville.

Loew's Capitol.

"Broadway Melody," the first all-talking-singing-dancing picture from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, is being given its premiere in the south this week at Loew's Capitol theater. Heralded as the most spectacular production of its kind yet attempted, "Broadway Melody" has literally "packed 'em in" at the Astor theater in New York and at Grammont's Chinese theater in Los Angeles. The vaudeville bill has been eliminated this week in view of the magnitude of the screen offering.

Howard.

Today marks the return of Douglas Fairbanks to the Howard in his latest picture, "The Iron Mask," sequel to that thrilling "Three Musketeers," which drew for him renowned fame. Again he is seen as the bold and fearless musketeer who risks life and loyalty to king and love of a fair dame. For the first time the star speaks from the screen, introducing an innovation in talking pictures by addressing the audience for business talk. On the stage Al Short and the Howard stage band offer "Ain't Rio Grande," featuring St. Williams, Anita Lapierre and ten Abbott girls.

Metropolitan.

"The Divine Lady," made from the famous novel by E. Barrington, with Charles Griffith, H. B. Warner and Victor Varconi starred, opens its engagement today at the Metropolitan, with Richard and O'Brien, former stars of Aladdin, and Charlie White's jolly jokers as additional attractions. The production is a masterpiece of the screen, lavishly staged, beautifully and well fully directed. It's the romance of the very beautiful Lady Hamilton and the Loew's Grand.

"Abie's Irish Rose," one of the most popular comedy-dramas of the past few years, is presented on the screen at Loew's Grand during the first three days of this week. It is a talking and singing picture, with full sound synchronization. The famous story of the Jewish boy and the Irish girl who circumvent the racial prejudice of their families and embark on a romance of their own, is pictured with remarkable effectiveness.

Cameo.

Israel Zangwill's remarkable novel, "The Big Bow Mystery," picturing the obsession of a great detective to commit the perfect crime, achieving his desire and then tortured by remorse, comes to the screen of the Cameo theater to remain through Tuesday. It appears under the screen title, "The Perfect Crime."

Alamo No. 2.

Two of the most beautiful brunettes on the screen support the most beautiful brunettes of all, Billie Dove, in the star's first National picture at the Alamo No. 2 theater. "The Yellow Lily" is the picture, an exotic love drama with Hungary for its background, and Jane Winton and Yola d'Avril are the supporting beauties. Olive Brook is the leading man.

Pond de Leon.

"How to Handle Women," at the Pond de Leon theater, is one of the most entertaining pictures that has been witnessed here this year. Glenn Tryon is starring and Marian Nixon is his leading lady. They make an excellent team, and the great success of the picture is due in large measure to these two. Tryon has only recently been elevated to stardom.

Tenth Street.

"Life Time," greatest of all the great air pictures, will be shown at the Tenth Street theater today and Tuesday. Colleen Moore is the featured female star and all the delightful comedy that you enjoy in her pictures will be found in this attraction, in addition to the vast air spectacles and tense romances. You'll sigh and you'll cry with this brave little lass of sunny France.

Empire.

All the masterful genius of the far-voice of Al Johnson, most popular star of the screen, is seen today in that star's latest and greatest Vitaphone talking and singing picture, "The Singing Fool," which opens a two-day run at the Empire theater, corner Georgia avenue and Crew street today. "The Singing Fool" not only presents Johnson in the height of his success as a singer, but tells an interesting dramatic story as well. A talented cast adds the famous stage and screen star in making "The Singing Fool" a record-breaking picture.

Atlanta Parades In Bright Array On Easter Dawn

BY ELMO HAMBY.
Another Easter Sunday has been rolled away into the annals and archives and approximately 27,213 pairs of new pants, slightly unpressed, are reposing in chiffon hangers this morning for wear next Sunday morn, while an equal number of frocks have been sent to the cleaners after a hard day on downtown Peachtree that rivalled a fashion parade on the Champs Elysees.

Bright, sunny weather which brought joy to the heart of every southerner, made conditions ideal and Sol, acting as a peeping Tom, awakened the citizenry at an early hour and summoned them to the open-toe parks, Sunday school, church and promenade.

SOVIETS OUTLAW MANY THOUSANDS

12th year of the revolution, is far from ended. It is in fact, a part of the process of exterminating the remnants of the former upper classes which would not—or could not—adjust themselves to the new society.

They may become street peddlers, hucksters (handicraft workers), private teachers and the like. If they have been in the capital they may even go into business on a small scale. But already unemployment is so large and competition so keen among the "de-classed" persons that such hope is not substantial.

The soviet elections, by forcing every community, even every single house, to sift out those who are not entitled to vote, have become an important part of the job of "house-cleaning." In Moscow alone some 80,000 have been disfranchised.

On the Pacific coast from the insurgents put up their first determined resistance in the federalist line town of La Cruz, north of Mazatlan. With machine guns on the battlements they yesterday warded off a federal bombing attack from the air. This air raid resulted in the first fatality in the federal air corps in actual combat in the revolution.

Captain Manuel Roberto Monterroso, an observer in the plane piloted by Lieutenant Colonel Pablo Sider, was struck by three bullets and died soon after returning to the federal air base at Mazatlan. All the federal planes were struck by the rebel bullets but Monterroso was the only aviator wounded.

NEWTON ACCEPTS CALL TO DRUID HILLS PULPIT

Official Announcement of Decision Made at Easter Morning Service.

Official acceptance of the call to the pastorate of the Druid Hills Baptist church was voted by Louis D. Newton, editor of the Christian Index and former editor of the City Builder, at the Sunday morning Easter service at which Mr. Newton delivered a sermon on "He Is Not Here; He Is Risen."

The pulp committee of the church voted on February 4 asking Mr. Newton to accept the call, but he declined that call on February 18. The second call was extended and Mr. Newton accepted a letter to Z. A. Haines, secretary of the pulp committee, which was read Sunday.

"Fully convinced that it is the will of God for me to accept the invitation of Druid Hills church to become its pastor, I am herewith asking you, as secretary of the committee, to convey to the committee and through the committee to the church, my acceptance, effective April 1."

Resigns Editorship.

Mr. Newton has sent his resignation as editor of the Christian Index to Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, chairman of the board of directors, and his resignation as editor of the City Builder to Philip Alton, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has been accepted.

Mr. Newton has been editor of the Christian Index since January 1, 1920. This weekly religious journal is the second oldest church newspaper in the United States, having been established in 1821. The circulation reaches every section of Georgia and the south and goes to several hundred subscribers in Europe. It is sent to every foreign missionary of the Southern Baptist convention, including every nation in Europe, Asia, Africa and South America. Mr. Newton will continue as editor until a successor is named.

The Druid Hills Baptist church was established in 1915 and Dr. F. C. McConnell was called as the first pastor. He died January 12, 1923. The church grew from about one hundred charter members to its present membership of more than 1,700. The present church property valued at $305,000 and is one of the most complete and beautiful church plants in the south. The contributions of the church last year amounted to $65,000.

Native Georgian.

Mr. Newton is a native Georgian, having been born on a farm in Screven county. He attended local schools and graduated at Mercer university in 1913. In 1917 he received his master of arts degree from Columbia university in New York city, having pursued his graduate work in history, preparing for a career as teacher in Mercer university. He was professor of history in that institution when he entered the war service.

Following the war Mr. Newton accepted the work as director of publicity of the Baptist seventy-five million dollar campaign in Georgia. This campaign closed with the end of 1919 and he accepted the editorship of the Christian Index on January 1, 1920. During his college career at Mercer and at Columbia he engaged in newspaper work.

He has been an active church worker since young manhood, having served as superintendent of the Sunday school of Trinity Square Baptist church in Macon and as deacon in that church. Upon coming to Atlanta, he served as a deacon in the Druid Hills church and as a teacher of a large men's Bible class. He is chairman of the board of deacons of the Druid Hills church. He is also president of the Baptist Council of Atlanta. He is a member of the executive and promotional committee of the Southern Baptist convention. He took part on the program of the Baptist World Alliance in Stockholm in 1923 and the recent session of the international organization, held at Toronto, Canada, last June.

Mr. Newton is married and has two daughters. He lives at 619 Bonaventure avenue.

Announcements of his ordination as a minister will be made later. It is the wish of the church to have Dr. George W. Truett, president of the Southern Baptist convention, and Dr. John D. Mott, president of the Georgia Baptist convention, present for the ordination.

Women Hungry For Opera After Years in Orient

Amongst the many letters received from out-of-town patrons of Atlanta's greatest musical event, the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, the Music Festival Association makes public the following unique letter from one of its enthusiastic subscribers:

"Tours of March 26 came and in same mail registered letter, containing three season tickets for grand opera."

"Your letter asked for names of those holding these tickets:

"Mrs. E. T. Turner.

"Mrs. R. T. Cunningham.

"Miss Mamie Darling Myers.

"We have had three season tickets for 1927, 1928 and now 1929. All three of us had been in the Orient several years so we are very hungry for the wonderful music the Atlanta Music Festival Association makes possible by bringing the Metropolitan Opera Company every spring. Glad to help in the support of such an enterprise."

"Thanks sincerely,

"(MISS) MARIE D. MYERS.

"Marionville, Ga."

The single ticket sale will begin at 9 a. m. on Monday, April 8, at the box office of the association in the Cable Piano Company building, 84 Broad street, N. W.

NEW YORK SEASON CLOSING APRIL 14

New York, March 31.—(P)—The Metropolitan Opera Company will bring to a close its New York season with a concert on April 14, two weeks from tonight, and on the following day will start on its annual spring tour. The last opera will be given Saturday night, April 13, Massenet's "Manon" with Lucien Bori and Beniamino Gigli.

The company will go on the spring tour, which will take the company as far south as Atlanta and as far west as Cleveland. It will open in Baltimore, April 15 and close in Rochester, N. Y., May 7. In all, counting members of the chorus and ballet and the stage crew, managerial staff, etc., there will be nearly 200 in the company.

Among the leading sopranos to make the entire trip will be Madame Bori and Rosa Ponselle. Florence Easton will join the company in Atlanta and Mrs. Bonakaya will be among the contralto principals. The leading tenors will be Edvard Johnson, Giacomo Lauri-Vaghi, and Armando Testa. Giuseppe Conze, Giuseppe De Luca, and Lawrence Tibbett will be the leading baritones, and Pavel Ludikar and Boris Godunov will be the leading basses. The conductors will be Giuseppe Biamonte, Vincenzo Bellini, Tullio Serafin and Louis Haselma.

PLUMBERS OFFER PRIZES AT GOOD HEALTH EXHIBITION

Three additional prizes have been announced in connection with the good health exhibition to be conducted at the city auditorium by the Junior Chamber of Commerce next week. The prizes in question are offered by the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau, in connection with the educational exhibit which will be made at the exhibition by the plumbing interests to demonstrate the dangers to health of inefficient plumbing equipment and improper installation. The prizes will be awarded for papers containing the largest number of reasons on "Why It Pays to Modernize Plumbing and Heating."

The first prize will be $25 in cash. The second will be a chromium-plated swing spoon set with a china soap dish and the third will be a colored waterproof shower bath curtain.

Information and details of this contest will be furnished to all who ask at the exhibit during the good health exposition, which will open a week from Monday, and continue daily throughout the week. The exposition will open formally at 6 p. m. Monday, and will be open between the hours of 2 to 11 p. m. daily thereafter.

R. O. T. C. OFFICER AT EMORY GETS TRANSFER ORDER

Major Richard T. Taylor, commandant of the Emory R. O. T. C., has been ordered to report for active service with the Twenty-sixth infantry at Plattsburg, N. Y., at the end of the quarter.

With present indications pointing to the selection of a captain instead of a major to succeed him, President Harvey Cox, of the university, is planning an interview with Major General Richmond P. Davis, of the Fourth Corps area, in an attempt to secure a major for the position.

Major Taylor came to Emory university in the fall of 1925.

GEORGIA'S WAGE EARNERS SHOW INCREASE IN YEAR

Manufacturing establishments in Georgia turned out $609,817,000 worth of products in 1927, in comparison to $648,852,204 worth in 1925, according to figures made public by the census bureau of the United States department of commerce.

Manufacturing plants increased, over the two-year period, from 2,576 to 3,175, and the number of wage earners employed in plants (not including salaried employees) jumped from 141,173 in 1925 to 154,168 in 1927. Wages paid amounted to $20,210,003 in 1925, but was increased to $108,113,193 in 1927.

The cost of materials used in manufacturing in 1927 was $380,261,684, as compared with $399,351,258 in 1925.

A total of $249,655,976 was the value added by manufacture in 1927, while in 1925 it was slightly less, $249,501,086.

The total value of all manufactured products in the United States in 1927 was $62,721,375,881, an increase of nearly a billion dollars over the 1925 total, which was $58,774,373,163.

Establishments turning out less than $5,000 in products per year were not included.

VARELLAS RESTAURANT IS IN NEW LOCATION

The Varellas restaurant, which has been popular with Atlantans for the past 15 years, this morning will assume direction of the restaurant formerly operated by the Fishkill Coffee Shop at 180 Peachtree street. It is announced by officials of the former.

The new location is in the heart of the uptown shopping section and is convenient to the many friends of the Varellas restaurant. Officials of the latter have invited the public to visit the new restaurant and inspect its modern equipment.

YOUTH BADLY BURNED ON HIGH POWER WIRE

Leg Also Broken in Fall From Steel Tower in Woods.

Sam Lynn, 19, of Bellmeade avenue, was in a critical condition at a local hospital Sunday night as a result of injuries received Sunday morning when he fell from a power line tower, near his home, after coming in contact with high-voltage wires. The boy suffered severe burns about the face and arms when he came in contact with the wire, and his leg was broken when he fell 35 feet to the ground.

William Warren, of a Seaboard avenue address, was with Lynn at the time of the accident, which happened at one of the towers in the woods through which the line runs to the near-by north Atlanta power house of the Georgia Power Company. The boys had been tramping about in the woods, Warren said, but Lynn climbed the tower, unobserved by his companion, who did not know that the youth was on the steel framework un-

CONGREGATIONAL CENTRAL CHURCH SELF-SUPPORTING

At the morning service yesterday Dr. Witherspoon, Dodge, pastor, announced that Central Congregational church had become self-supporting.

For more than a score of years the church, which received missionary aid from its home missionary society, when Dr. Dodge came to the pastorate seven years ago, it was receiving $2,200 a year.

At a meeting of the business committee of the church, held two weeks ago, decision was made not to ask for renewal of any of this grant, and the financial secretary was requested to write to all members of the church stating this action and asking for any raise in their present subscription which they desired to make toward raising this additional sum. Through this means most of this money has already been raised, the balance of it is in sight, and some of the members have expressed their willingness to do

The Mirror of the Mode

BY MARY MARSHALL

There are some women who have grown so accustomed to wearing one sort of necklace or choker that they would as soon—possibly sooner—go forth sans stockings than without a string of pearls or crystal beads or metal ornament nestling round the base of their necks. And some of these women will doubtless go on wearing the brief round necklace or choker after everyone else has given it up just as some older women today arrange their hair over puffs or pads because some time back in the days before the war they got into the habit of feeling not quite decently dressed without some such contraption.

Like most of the fashions of the day the choker type of necklace is primarily suitable for the younger woman or the woman whose neck and chin retain youthful contours. For the woman with a double chin it is pathetically inappropriate and for the woman whose cheeks have rounded out so that the youthful oval lines of the chin have been lost sight of it is almost as unbecoming. These women should choose necklaces of a longer sort that do not over-emphasize the circular line of neck and chin. And no girl with a very short neck—be she 16 or 20—ought to wear any choker save of the most slender sort. The wide choker seems to take the neck in what little neck she has at her disposal.

Like everything else this spring necklaces and chokers are made to become the sun-tanned skin. There are necklaces of pearls of a golden tone that will be more becoming to this summer than the pearls of the natural tone. There are necklaces of copper-colored metal and silver of a golden tone called sunburned silver.

Shown on the figure above is a necklace of gold and sunburned silver—with little bracelet to match for wear with street suit. Indicated at the left above is a modernistic copper-colored necklace for sunburned skin. In the center are various necklaces for afternoon wear. On the figure are three short-strands of pearls; indicated in the background a long necklace of carnelian with crystal and jade rondelles. A choker of purple crystals and metal links has a bracelet to match. Shown below are three necklaces for evening. On the figure is a string of emeralds on a fine silver chain that falls at the back with one emerald at the front of the neck. Above at the right a collar and pin of woven rhinestones held with large square crystal. At left above, strands of bright red and crystal beads held with a diamond clasp and earrings to match.

This week's home dressmaker's help consists of directions for making flat envelope purses with patent fasteners which may be bought in convenient lengths at most of the stores. Once you know how to make bags of this sort you can quite easily make one to go with each of your new spring or summer ensembles. Send your stamped, self-addressed envelope, please, and I will gladly send you a copy with a sketch of the finished purse and a diagram pattern for making.

If you would like some of the following circulars just check them, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for them, and they will be sent to you promptly.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

What Happened at Farmer Brown's Henhouse.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Dishonesty, as it is meted, May bring about its own defeat.

—Jimmy Skunk.

While Farmer Brown's Boy and Farmer Brown and Mother Brown slept peacefully, thieves were busy in the henhouse. There were two of them. Out in the road was an automobile parked a safe distance away. These thieves had had much experience in stealing chickens and knew just how to go about it. They knew that Farmer Brown's Boy would be out hunting for them. They knew that Farmer Brown's Boy would lose all his hens. Yes, sir, it looked very much as if he would lose all his hens, and they were very choice hens.

Working quickly, one of the men took the hens from the roost one at a time, in such a way as not to disturb the others. Meanwhile the other held a bag open to receive the hens. When the first bag was filled this man took it out of the henhouse and stepped outside the barnyard gate to put it down. He planned to go back for another bag. As he turned he saw something white moving. Looking more closely, he saw what he thought was a black and white cat. He didn't want that cat around that bag of hens. Just then his toe touched a stick. He picked up the stick and threw it at kitty, at the same time rushing forward two or three steps and stamping his feet.

Right at that instant things happened. Yes, sir, things happened. They happened at a fast and furious rate. That wasn't a black and white cat. Of course, you know who it was. It was Jimmy Skunk. Yes, sir, it was Jimmy Skunk! And Jimmy had brought his little scent-gun into use. That man gave a choking gasp and started to run. He stumbled and fell heavily and gave vent to a smothered exclamation.

The man inside the henhouse did not, of course, know what had happened. He heard the other man's fall and exclamation, and then he heard the sound of his running feet. Of course, he dropped everything, for his first thought was that they had been discovered. He bolted out of the henhouse door. "Phew!" he exclaimed, for Jimmy Skunk's scent nearly took his breath away. Then he plunged for the barnyard gate. It had swung to. He threw it open with a bang and plunged out to follow his companion. Now it just happened that Jimmy Skunk, who through it all had been quite undisturbed, had moved forward so that as the second thief started to run, he was without knowing it running straight toward Jimmy. Once more Jimmy brought that little scent-gun into play. Then he calmly turned and walked over to examine the bag of hens.

Meanwhile, the two thieves, choking and gasping, stumbled toward their waiting automobile. There would be no more stealing of chickens that night. Of course, the second thief blamed the first thief. "Couldn't you see that skunk when you went out there?" he demanded. "Didn't you know enough to leave him alone? You must have frightened him, or he wouldn't have used his scent. Say, this is terrible! We'll have to get out of here and get a long distance away, or they'll find us by the scent!"

In the meantime the chickens had wakened when the second thief had dropped the bag, and there was a great squawking and cackling going on in the henhouse. It was a regular alarm. Altogether, it was enough to arouse the whole neighborhood. Farmer Brown's Boy jumped out of bed and threw up his window. "Phew!" he exclaimed. "Jimmy Skunk must be in among the hens this time. I guess he isn't so innocent as I thought he was."

SIMPLE—SMART.

You'll adore the simple lines of this slender blouse of chartreuse green wool jersey embroidered in deeper tone of same shade in cross-stitch pattern in wool jersey. It is striking to wear with plain black silk plaited skirt now, and later for active sports with white silk crepe skirt. It will be a lovely addition for your new spring ensemble in plain silk crepe in honey-beige or bright red. A gay print in yellow-beige background with violet and orange-red is ultra-new. Georgetown, flowered chiffon, wool crepe, crepe satin and handkerchief linen also appropriate for style No. 408. It is designed in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust, and takes but 1 7/8 yards of 40-inch material to make it for the 36-inch size. Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully. Trans. No. 11181 (blue) 15 cents extra.

We suggest that when you send for this pattern you enclose 10 cents additional for a copy of our spring fashion magazine. It's just filled with delightful styles including smart ensembles, and cute designs for the kiddies.

A DAINTY FROCK FOR MORNING OR SPORTS WEAR. 6458. Printed dimity in here pictured. One could use voile, madras, percale or tub silk, with contrasting material for the vestee, belt and pockets, for the binding for a field. The front is in two sections, shaped in a wide point at the center above a plait insert. Serviceable pockets are added. The shaped neck edge is filled in with a vestee featuring diagonal lines. The back is in one piece. A belt holds the frock at slight bloused effect.

The pattern for this design is cut in seven sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. To make the dress for a 38-inch size will require 3 1/4 yards of material, 36 inches wide or wider. For vestee, belt and pockets of contrasting material 1/2 yard is required, 36 inches wide. The width of the dress at the lower edge with plait fulness extended is 49 inches.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

Beauty's Boudoir

BY MARIE LA ROQUE.

Hypertichosis is the name given by skin specialists for the condition that most women describe as superfluous hair. From nature's point of view there may be nothing whatever abnormal about it. But to the woman who has it it is usually most vexatious.

Hair that we speak of as superfluous is usually hair on the upper lip, on the chin or on the lower part of the cheeks. Eyebrows may be too bushy or too wide to suit the individual or they may come too close together in the center. Then they, too, are to some extent superfluous. It is the hair around the mouth and chin that is usually most vexatious. I would like to be able to say that such hair unless very pronounced is no blemish and that women ought to be content to leave it alone. But I know that it is a blemish and that faces that would otherwise be very attractive are marred by down and bristles on the chin or a little moustache on the lip.

The most important bit of advice I can possibly give you is this. Don't trust yourself and your precious skin to the mercies of any one who claims to remove such hairs until you are perfectly sure that the method employed is entirely safe. Get your doctor's verdict before you submit to any sort of treatment for the permanent removal of hair.

The electric needle is usually used without injury for this purpose, but it is more useful when there are just a few troublesome bristles than when there is a thick growth of fine hairs. Personally, I would advise the use of some one of the widely-used depilatories for that sort of thing. Used as directed and not too frequently they do no harm to the skin. And even if the hair does come back a few up-to-date spring and summer 1929 look of fashions.

Address orders for this pattern to Beauty Fashion Department, care The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

little coarser in the course of time you have at least the satisfaction of knowing how to get rid of it again. And I doubt very much whether the use of these depilatories does stimulate the growth of hair. As one grows older the hair becomes wrier and more bristly anyway, and it is hard to say whether this tendency is increased by the use of the depilatory or not.

This week's beauty help has been written for the benefit of women who have asked for treatment for enlarged pores. It has been based on methods that have been found helpful in a great many cases, and I feel sure will be helpful to those who need such advice. If you will send me your stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will forward it to you.

FERTILIZER SALES SHOW DECREASE OVER GEORGIA

Fertilizer sales in Georgia from January 1 through March 27 showed a decrease of more than 100,000 tons, compared to that period last year, according to officials of the fertilizer inspection division of the state department of agriculture.

A total of $170,685.40 in fertilizer tax was collected through March 27, the division reports showed, as compared with $219,587.10 for the same period in 1928. The difference of 100,000 tons was arrived at by figuring the rate of fertilizer tax, which is 30 cents per ton.

Floods and excessive rains were given as reasons for a late plowing season and a resultant late buying of fertilizers. Officials expressed the opinion that the full 1929 season's figures might compare more favorably

Cast for 'Trial Of Many Dugan' To Arrive Today

The principals, witnesses, court officials, jurymen, attorneys and others who are to play parts in "The Trial of Mary Dugan" will arrive in Atlanta early this morning to await the opening, next Monday, at the Briarcliff theater, of that sensational case.

In other words, the cast of New York players which is to present to Atlanta theatergoers that popular mysterious melodrama, will arrive here today preparatory to the opening of the play next Monday.

The play is unique among American dramas in that the action is laid entirely in a courtroom. When the curtain rises the court is already sitting, and Mary Dugan is on trial for murder before stern-faced jurors. The gripping action takes place in this courtroom, and as it is unfolded, as it sometimes happens in real courtrooms, the amazing series of events leading up to and following the crime for which the defendant is on trial.

Lewis Haase, manager of the Briarcliff, has stated that as guests of honor at the opening night performance will be Solicitor-General John A. Boykin, the judges of the superior court bench, Chief of Police James L.

Florida Legislature To Get Measure Calling for Upward Revision of All Taxation

Increased Valuations, Importation of Inheritance Levy and Elimination of Many Bureaus Seen

Tallahassee, Fla., March 31.—(AP) The busiest session in the history of the state faces the Florida senate and house of representatives as members of the two bodies prepare to launch on Tuesday into two months of labor in the twenty-second regular session of the lawmakers.

Taxes and the ever present question of revenue appeared tonight to be well in the lead of the problems that will require lengthy and troubled sessions of the solons. Through pre-meeting discussions today ran the strong current of opinion on the tax question, with several plans tentatively considered by the early arrivals as being worthy of consideration.

The governor's stand on the questions of taxes and revenue occupied a large part of today's discussions by senators and representatives, despite their attention to the business of selecting officers. While numerous tax plans were freely discussed during the day, there was nevertheless a strain of restraint that apparently will hold until after Governor Carlton's recommendations on the questions are made public.

General Tax Revision.

The chief executive is understood to be in favor of a general revision of the tax structure of the state under a scheme which is intended to place Florida valuations far above their present standings. From early reports as to the content of the governor's address gained in well-informed state house circles, it was apparent that the chief executive was in favor of a general revision of the tax structure of the state under a scheme which is intended to place Florida valuations far above their present standings. From early reports as to the content of the governor's address gained in well-informed state house circles, it was apparent that the chief executive was in favor of a general revision of the tax structure of the state under a scheme which is intended to place Florida valuations far above their present standings.

parent today that the scheme which Governor Carlton will offer for legislative action will call for a number of innovations in the matter of assessment and collection, with a plan of distribution whose purpose and operations would be in many ways different from the present system.

A bill for Florida inheritance tax, operative only so far as is necessary to gain reductions from the federal government in its inheritance tax provisions, will be introduced in the senate at an early session, it was said today. In tentative form, the bill to be presented for legislative action provides for the establishment of such a tax only so long as a similar lien is enforced by the United States against Florida inheritances or estates, and which should only be enforced to the extent of absorbing the amount of any deduction or credit which might be permitted by the laws of the United States.

General understanding today was that members of the senate and house of representatives will be open to any suggestions made by Governor Carlton as to reduction of state expenses and the placing of state institutions and operations on a more economical basis. The solons were also understood to be awaiting with favor any recommendations that he may make on the tax question.

In line with the policy of fusion of a number of state departments, which it is understood at the state house that Governor Carlton will recommend in his address, legislators informally declared themselves today on the subject, with a number of conflicting ideas on the best methods of installing such a plan.

Your Home and You

BY BETSY CALLISTER.

Everybody knows that today is April Fool's Day, but nobody knows how the tradition regarding the day originated. Students have searched far and wide and they have racked their brains trying to discover where, how and when the foolish customs of the day arose, but all they have concluded is that the custom is very ancient and that there has been some sort of association of foolishness with the day since the dawn of history. Perhaps it is all based on some ancient pagan festival of the day that antedates Christianity.

The day may be auspicious enough for beginning any enterprise, but the fear of being called April fool has usually kept people from selecting this day for the starting of any undertaking. Napoleon Bonaparte must have forgotten the associations of the day when he selected it for his wedding day with Marie Louise of Austria, the 19-year-old girl whom he took to wed after having divorced the 40-year-old Josephine.

In France the custom is to call any April fool joke a "Poison d'Avril"—an April fish. Those among the French who sympathized with the discarded Josephine or who were not in favor of an Austrian marriage called this second marriage an April fish.

It is not a usual day for weddings, although coming as it does this year in Easter week when weddings are always abundant there will doubtless be many "April fool" brides.

Old English Doll Claims 4th Generation Mistress

Just what is the proper age for a doll? Are they loved best by their child-mothers when they come spick and span and fresh and clean from the toy store shelf, or do they acquire charm as they grow older?

If charm in dolls is acquired by age and experience, there is one doll in Atlanta that should be the delight of any child's heart. For it is, at least, a hundred years old.

This doll was, a long, long time ago, the proud child of a little girl in England. She made its clothes, loved it and cherished it as all proper little girls love and adore their best dolls.

Then, in the customary course of events, the little girl grew up, married and had a little girl of her own. The doll, still in good condition, became the heritage of the second generation.

Repeating the age-old story, the second little girl grew up, married and had boys and girls of her own. In turn, her little girl played with the same dear old doll.

At this point the maternal line of descent was interrupted. The third girl when she grew up didn't save the doll for her own daughter but sent it instead to America and to Atlanta, where she had a little niece she had never seen, the baby of her brother.

And today the same doll, enjoying the love and attention of its fourth generation of owners, is to be found at a home in Decatur, where six-year-old Christine Jones, youngest daughter of Ralph T. Jones, of the editorial staff of The Constitution, proudly shows her "old English doll" to all visitors.

Christine is shown in the picture above holding her old doll. The dress the doll wears is the same dress Christine's great-grandmother made when the doll was new. The heavy lace trimming is all handwork. And, whisper it, the little lady's undergarments are handmade, too. She wears a hand-knitted, all-wool-slip they call it today, though its great-grandmother's day it was a chemise or a Balmain.

Her arms and—limbs are of kid and are as slender as those of the popular French dolls of 1929. The hands and arms are blue, presumably to represent the long-sleeved kid gloves they used to wear.

The curls are naturally blond—a real lady of the early nineteenth century didn't know what peroxide was for.

And the face is wax. Time has worked its incredible havoc with the once beautiful features. The wax has turned from the cream and pink complexion of youth to almost black. The eyes are becoming slightly "popped" as the wax lids have worn away.

And the nose? There is barely the hint of the place where the nose should be.

But young or old, beautiful or sere with advancing years, Christine loves her and takes the best of care of her. For, she says, maybe she'll have a little girl of her own some day who would like to have the doll. If she does it'll be the fifth generation of mistresses for the same doll.

Has anyone in Atlanta an older doll than this?

Day for Fools' Delight Is Again With Us Today

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

April Fool's Day—the terror day of teachers, the day of dark foreboding to old gentlemen who kick pacifiers off the sidewalk, a day of disappointment to those who porance upon a fat wallet just before a concealed string whisks it away, a day of humiliation for all of those who call Mr. Lyon, a noted figure of the Grant Park zoo.

April Fool's Day is here with all its quips and cracks. A day for the masses, as all of us are more or less fools in some way or the other.

Some fools are flagpole pitters, some march from coast to coast in bunion derbies, some fall in love with flappers, some buy wildcat stocks, some bet their money the Crofters win the pennant, some play the poker, some believe it's real pre-war stuff, some believe two can live as cheaply as one, some think last year's straw hat looks as good as new, while some believe next week's picture at the Bumpum theatre is really the super picture of all time.

But the worst sufferer from foolishness will be the teachers. The kids are relentless in their tricks and pranks. It is a day of sore trial for the pedagogue who must perform look alikes at the gift apple for fear of red paper and must be wary of sweet cakes stuffed with cotton.

April Fool's Day is here, so fair warning, gentlemen! Beware of the trick under the old hat. Decline the invitation to look up at the bellows.

WEST END GATHERING TO HEAR IVAN ALLEN

Ivan Allen, civic leader and author of a boulevard plan designed to relieve traffic congestion in large cities, will address the meeting tonight of the South Fulton Civic Federation at the West End Baptist church, Gordon and Lee streets, when formal plans for the construction of the Robert E. Lee Memorial boulevard, from Spring street to the Clayton line, will be announced. The entire board of commissioners of Fulton county and Chief of Construction Clark Donaldson, of Atlanta, will attend the meeting and speak on the project.

Dr. W. Beecher DuVal, president, will have charge of the meeting, the second of its kind to be held by the federation. The public is invited to attend and become familiar with the various civic improvements planned for the southern half of Atlanta and Fulton county and many prominent civic workers from other sections are expected.

The plan will be submitted to City Manager R. V. Orban before the new budget is made up in July, it was learned.

WOULD USE NETS TO BAR SUICIDES ON PASADENA BRIDGE

Pasadena, Calif., March 31.—(United Press.)—"Suicide Prevention Nets" may soon be placed beneath the Colorado street bridge here to check the mounting toll of deaths caused by persons leaping off the high structure. Nearly 30 persons have ended their lives in this manner, it was pointed out.

Chief of Police Charles H. Kelley has requested the city engineering department to estimate the cost of stringing the life nets some 15 feet below the bridge.

The plan will be submitted to City Manager R. V. Orban before the new budget is made up in July, it was learned.

Sally's eight-hour ironing day

"Rose at half-past four this morning. Ironed industriously till one o'clock, . . . went upstairs, threw myself on the bed, and fell asleep."

—from Journal of Sally Wister
A maid of the Revolution

WE HEAR a great deal about the valor of the men of 1776. But it's in little passages like the above, found in an old-time diary, that we learn about the valor of the women of '76!

Ironing used to be tiring, what with innumerable steps back and forth across the kitchen from stove to ironing board. And arms weighted with heavy sad irons!

Now—under the new residential electric rate—every housewife can afford the liberal use of an electric iron . . . an iron that keeps hot as long as you like . . . smooth, easy to use!

There are many models of electric irons on display at one of our story retail stores in Georgia. The terms of purchase are easy.

The Constitution's Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. SMITH COMPANY

There is hardly a need for a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

Big Roofing Company Faces Busiest Season in History

The White Roofing Company now is reaping the benefit of the good roof work it has been doing in Atlanta the past ten years or more, for never in its history has it been so busy as it is at the present time.

This firm puts all types and designs of asphalt roofing on residences, commercial and industrial plants, schools, churches and other private or public buildings and gives a ten-year guarantee on all work.

The president of this company, W. Paul White, says, "Ten years is an extra long time to guarantee a roof, but we use only the best of materials, and have an efficient organization of expert roofers and every roof we apply is done right. There are hundreds of buildings in and around Atlanta that we have put new roofs on—many of them over ten years ago, and these roofs are good for many years yet."

"When we tell a building owner we protect all property owners from any liability to our men while working on their buildings."

The White Roofing Company, wishing to render the fullest possible service, has recently added more outside salesmen, and a phone call to Walnut 8579, at the office, 307 Walton building, will bring a salesman with a sample outfit of many kinds of roofing. These men have had much experience in measuring roofs and very quickly can give an estimate of what a new roof of any particular type or design will cost. And where terms might be wanted, the company has a 10-month plan that is very satisfactory to those who do not find it convenient to pay all cash.

The White Roofing Company is better prepared than ever to go outside of Atlanta and has just bought another new truck that will enable them to go in any direction from Atlanta up to 100 miles, and their guarantee on one-of-a-kind roofs is the same as in Atlanta.

Officials of the White Roofing Company are: W. Paul White, president and general manager; J. O. White, vice president; and J. H. Cherry, treasurer.

English Cotton Industry Weekly Report

Manchester, England, March 31.—(By Mail.)—In sympathy with the advancing tendency in raw material prices spinners and manufacturers have been compelled to put up their quotations to meet the new situation. There is a good deal of uncertainty in trade circles as to the future course of values and many leading operators have been quite prepared to mark their goods with a large number of shippers and merchants placed substantial orders about ten days ago and the contracts then arranged look well. The turnover in yarn and cloth during the week has been checked but it can be said that the ineffectual demand remains healthy.

The inquiry in cloth for abroad has been on a considerable scale and extensive negotiations have taken place between buyers and sellers. Results in the way of actual business have been irregular and while in some quarters an encouraging trade has been done in other directions it has been extremely difficult to make progress. Trade with India has been seriously upset by the disturbances in Calcutta which have resulted in a big falling off in demand for that country. A steady trade has been done in light bleaching cloths for Karachi whilst demand for the up-country districts has been rather better.

There has been rather a better business offering for Bombay and fair sales have taken place in white staples. A steady trade has been done in light bleaching cloths for Karachi whilst demand for the up-country districts has been rather better.

The credit jam, resulting in a 20 per cent call money rate on Tuesday, and a flood of margin calls on "big board" stocks, caused a deluge of selling on the curb market by traders forced to liquidate part of their holdings to put up more margin. When the banks came to the rescue late Tuesday, curb stocks accompanied "big board" stocks in their extraordinary upturn.

Ford of Canada was again conspicuous for its wide fluctuations. It dropped from 900 to 822 in the first two days, then shot up to 112.9 on Thursday. Automotive stocks generally reacted violently. Auburn lost 20 points, then recovered its loss. Firestone Tire dropped to 246, then sprang upward more than 20 points.

In common with the old stock on the "big board" the new issues of Telephone stock was markedly stronger, even when the general list was weak, and made a gain of more than 16 points, going above 54. Wright Aero new stock had a decline of about 20 points to 114, but also turned upward after Tuesday. Rose closed at 100, a week feature, selling as low as 5. Early in the year it sold as high as 56 1/2. United States Freight dropped 15 points to 82, and regained but 8 points of its loss.

Oil stocks were particularly heavy early in the week. Indiana share dropping 5 points to a new low, and Vacuum 16 points to 111, but practically the entire group surged upward later reflecting the progress of the American Petroleum Institute's general committee in agreeing upon a crude production curtailment program. Vacuum recovered all its loss, and International Petroleum and Humble mounted 9 and 11 points respectively. Utilities were highly irregular, generally improving Wednesday and Thursday. In the mines, Newmont encountered heavy selling.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF COTTON MARKET

New Orleans, March 31.—(P)—The cotton market during the past week was dominated to a large extent by violent changes in the stock market and stringency of the credit situation which advanced call loans to 20 per cent on Tuesday. As a result there was heavy liquidation in cotton as well as in other commodities and by Tuesday prices showed losses from the closing levels of last Saturday of 58 to 66 points.

In the last two sessions of the week prices rallied on covering and trade buying stimulated by the recovery in the stock market and the drop in call money to 8 per cent. Prices recovered practically all the early decline and the close on Friday showed practically no change compared with the closing levels of the preceding Saturday and only a small net loss of 4 to 10 points compared with the close of the preceding Friday.

These wide fluctuations pertaining to the market, the weather early in the week showed some improvement but about the middle of the week the rains cleared and weather outlook for over the Easter holidays was considered unfavorable.

The fact that the week would end with a triple Easter holiday led to the usual evening up of commitments and liquidation on Thursday, but the liquidation was more than offset by shorts covering in advance of the holiday.

While the week witnessed very extensive liquidation of the speculative long interest, there also developed good trade buying on the scale down and offerings were fairly well absorbed.

Despite the fluctuations in cotton prices the domestic cotton goods market continued to show considerable activity and this was largely a supporting influence as was also the almost daily showing of cables which generally came in much better than due.

The following shows the high, low and closing sales in the New Orleans futures market during the past week compared with a year ago.

	High	Low	Close	Year Ago
May	100.00	97.00	97.00	100.00
July	100.00	97.00	97.00	100.00
September	100.00	97.00	97.00	100.00
November	100.00	97.00	97.00	100.00
January	100.00	97.00	97.00	100.00

The course of business during the past month has been maintained at a high level of activity and sentiment continues optimistic, reports the National City Bank monthly review of economic conditions. Manufacturing plants in most of the major industries are operating at capacity. It states, and retail trade in consumable merchandise is brisk and employment is large and increasing. The bank points out that there is no evidence that the business situation and states that the only possible weak spot of importance is a building construction which has fallen off under the volume of a year ago.

Big Business Anticipated By M. D. Smith Company

This is the time of the year that awning and tent men are busy, and a visit to the M. D. Smith Tent and Awning Company during the past week found employees busy—everyone connected with the organization hard at work doing his part to make this the banner season.

The firm, which is the oldest of its kind south of the Mason-Dixon line, and which has been making tents and awnings for more than forty years, enjoys a reputation for good work, and its canvas products are shipped to all points of the compass.

Recently a large gospel tent was sent to Oakland, Calif., by express, another one to Portland, Oreg., and some to Pennsylvania, Colorado, Virginia, Illinois, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida and various counties in Georgia.

"Quality product" has been the watchword of the M. D. Smith company, which uses only the best materials in all the canvas goods made, and as many of their expert workmen have been with the company for years they have a reputation for not only a pleasant, their customers, but please them so well that they recommend them to their friends when they are contemplating purchase of awnings, tents or other things made of canvas.

While the M. D. Smith company is one of the oldest canvas firms in the country, it is also one of the most progressive, and the art and designing department is constantly creating new designs here that are copied in other parts of the country. The general manager, W. A. Rafter, is a great believer in painted stripes for awning work, giving as his reason that the more the cloth material is covered up with a good grade of weather-resistant paint just that much longer will the awnings last.

In addition to their own individual striped and stenciled designs, this firm has all the standard and latest modern patterns, and their salesmen call on everyone who is interested in new awnings, bringing with them large books of sample awning material. This permits the home owner or tenant the opportunity to select just the particular pattern or style of awning that he may deem most suitable to their home or business.

In its tent department this firm makes whatever may be needed, from a child's play tent to one large enough for a big circus, and tents that they have made in the past are carrying their trade mark from coast to coast. They have a great stock of used tents of many different sizes and shapes that they rent to responsible people.

One of the features that always impresses a visitor to the M. D. Smith company is the enormous quantities of tent and awning material they carry, and this year they have laid in even larger stocks of material in anticipation of doing a record-breaking business. No matter how elaborate an awning or tent may be needed, they have the material to make it, and an efficient organization with the best of equipment to do the work. The place call to try 7122 on Marietta street will make a contact with a firm that is noted for good work.

Here's the Idea of This Contest!

This contest calls upon you to name the titles of the motion pictures represented by a series of 30 cartoons. In other words, there are 30 cartoons. Each cartoon represents the title of a motion picture. Under each cartoon is a list of titles in which the CORRECT TITLE to that cartoon can be found. Besides sending in your answers to the 30 cartoons you are required to accompany your answer with either 2 or 4 new six-month subscriptions to The Atlanta Constitution. There is no need to collect any money from your subscribers if those subscribers live in the city. Atlanta or in any city or town in which The Atlanta Constitution maintains carrier or dealer delivery. All your subscribers need do is sign their names agreeing to take The Constitution for six months paying the carrier 20 cents at the end of each week. That's all there is to it so far as subscriptions are concerned. The most important thing is to get the correct or nearest correct titles to the 30 cartoons. THAT'S WHAT IT TAKES TO WIN. So far the contest has been in progress for ten days. And on this page you will find ALL OF THE CARTOONS THAT HAVE BEEN PUBLISHED SO FAR. You can start RIGHT NOW and WIN. There is nothing to stop you. If you can name the titles of these 10 cartoons, THERE IS NO REASON WHY YOU SHOULD NOT BE ABLE TO NAME THE TITLES OF ALL 30 CARTOONS. NO CATCHES! NO TRICKS! You can see all 30 cartoons before you start getting your subscriptions. If you want the complete set of 30 cartoons, merely mail in the coupon printed in the lower right-hand corner of this double page.

Grady hospital, Ormond Harris, 28, of 547 Monroe avenue, with a bullet wound in the left chest, near the heart, was given only a fighting chance to live, while Mark N. McDermott, 30, of Loyola, Ga., was in a serious condition as the result of a poison dose.

Harris attempted to end his life shortly after noon in the office of the Elliott street branch of the Capital City Chair Company, where he was employed as a watchman, according to information furnished by Detective Roy Whitley and John Davis by Dave G. Harris, father of the wounded man.

The older Harris told the detectives his son had been despondent over ill health, and Sunday morning at their home seemed to be more than usually melancholy, so the father decided to accompany him when he went to attend to his duties at the chair factory. Arriving at the plant, they went to the office and the father volunteered to make the rounds, leaving his son seated in the office. He had just left the room, the older Harris said, when he heard a shot and ran back to find his son slumped over in the chair with his pistol lying by his hand.

The father summoned an ambulance and the wounded man was taken to the hospital, where it was found that the ball, of .32-caliber, had passed through the chest, inflicting what doctors feared would be a fatal wound. An ambulance from the hospital made the run of about four miles to the hospital and returned to the plant, where the father, in the meantime, after receiving the call, had been waiting for the ambulance. According to another report made by Detectives Whitley and Davis, McDermott attempted suicide by taking a quantity of poison which was in the Anasly hotel about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

MAN IS OVERCOME BY ESCAPING GAS WHILE HE SLEEPS

H. F. Baker, Sr., 70, of 463 Ninth street, was in a serious condition at Grady hospital late Sunday after having been overcome by gas while asleep at his home Sunday afternoon.

As nearly as could be learned, the only man had gone to sleep for his usual afternoon siesta shortly after noon Sunday, and while he slept was overcome by gas escaping in small quantities from a jet, which had become loosened while he slept, or which was defective. He was unable to tell at the hospital just what happened. He was found by neighbors who came to his home Sunday night, and which was defective. He was unable to tell at the hospital just what happened. He was found by neighbors who came to his home Sunday night, and which was defective.

Rain and Colder Is Sad Outlook As April Dawns

It is to be hoped that the official prognosticators at the Washington weather bureau are given to all. For day pranks for they have hung out the "Rain and Colder" sign as Atlanta's weather lot today. Increasing cloudiness is to be followed by showers which, in turn, are to be followed by increasing cold.

March passed out like a very well bred little lamb, much to the delight of the Easter paraders and churchgoers. The sun which shone so brightly on new spring finery showed brightly enough on the thermometer to send the mercury up to the 74-degree mark, not as high as it has been recently, but still satisfactory enough. The low was 56 degrees.

Favored again Sunday with good flying weather and good watching weather, Atlanta's fliers and watchers gathered in great numbers at Candler field, there to pursue their respective lines of endeavor.

There is apparently no way of making an estimate, but after spending an afternoon at the local airport watching the lay public going for airplane rides one can't but wonder just what proportion of Atlanta's population has had some experience with the present proportion of the sky and how the planes with considerable assurance and are quite obviously persons who have been caught by the fascination of air travel and are coming back for more. Perhaps in another ten years the man who hasn't traveled considerably in airplanes will be as much of a novelty as the man who now has never ridden in an automobile.

Jesus Christ, the folks their usual Sunday afternoon thrill by cutting loose into space at a height of about 1,500 feet to float down under the wings of a biplane. The chap has been leaning about under the lines for some time now, and has announced on several occasions his intention to break the southern record for a long time, but he has been unable to do so. He was largely to the fact that he has not been favored with an absolutely perfect day for the attempt. He explained, today in figures compiled by the ship-ping board.

The waterborne foreign commerce of the country for the fiscal year of 1928 totaled nearly 100,000,000 long tons, valued at almost $3,000,000,000, the statistics revealed, and 28 countries with 5,100 ships participated in the handling of this commerce. The freight bill totaled $750,000,000.

FATHER WATCHES AS SON BATTLES AGAINST DEATH

As Clarence Drake, 21, of 644 Jett street, lay at Grady hospital Sunday and continued his long fight against gunshot wounds which threaten his life, his father, W. F. Drake, the man who, police say, inflicted those wounds, sat at his bedside and did his best to help the stricken boy in his desperate fight for life.

The elder Drake was not constantly at his son's side because his condition could not allow him to be absent from his cell at police station all the time, so every other hour he was brought, always under heavy guard, to the hospital, where he was allowed to sit for an hour at the bedside of his wounded son. After an hour of anxious watching he was returned to headquarters, there to stay until he could be returned again to the suffering boy's side.

The boy was shot, according to police, by the father in a quarrel at their home last Wednesday. The bullet entered the boy's neck and lodged near the spinal cord. The father was arrested and taken to headquarters while the boy was rushed to the hospital. The wounded boy's condition grew steadily worse until Sunday. The doctors held forth little hope for his life.

BIG PERCENTAGE OF FOREST FIRES SET PURPOSELY

Twenty per cent of Georgia's 17,000 forest fires in 1928 were set purposefully, according to data from the state forestry department. The object in most cases, E. M. Lufburrow, state forester, said, was to "green up" the woods for pasture.

"This practice," Mr. Lufburrow said, "not only kills young growth and scars and retards the growth of large trees, but kills the most desirable grasses instead of improving grass range. Wire grass and sedge remain to take possession."

Causes given by the forester for fires that have contributed to Georgia's $6,250,000 loss from forest fires last year, and the number of each were:

Lightning, 181; railroads, 1,007; campers, 1,601; smokers, 1,628; brush burning, 1,444; incendiary (purposefully set), 3,457; lumbering operations, 327; miscellaneous, 7,586; unknown, 808.

4 SLIGHTLY HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS ON EASTER SUNDAY

Four persons were slightly injured Sunday in two accidents which marked a Sunday remarkably free from serious mishaps.

Mrs. J. Goldberg, of 306 Logan street, and her two young children suffered lacerations and bruises about the face and body Sunday afternoon when the automobile in which they were riding collided at Georgia avenue and Hill street with another automobile operated by G. B. Barges of 425 Broyles street. No cases were made by Call Officers Higgins and Cernig.

Mrs. Cora Downing, of 924 Virginia avenue, suffered lacerations about the face and head when she was struck down Sunday afternoon at the intersection of Boulevard and Fair by an automobile driven by G. M. Durham. She was treated at Grady hospital and dismissed. Patrolman Leathers investigated and made no case.

MRS. T. J. STARNES FINAL RITES TODAY IN AUSTELL CHURCH

Mrs. T. J. Starnes, resident of Atlanta for the past 15 years, died Sunday at the home of her son, J. L. Starnes, 1088 North Avenue. Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock today at the Methodist church at Austell. The Rev. Bob Edmondson will officiate, and burial will be in Rose Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Starnes was the daughter of the late W. L. Hawes, pioneer Atlantan. Following her marriage she moved to Austell. When her husband died about 15 years ago she returned here and has lived in the city since. She leaves four sons, W. J. H. and C. W. Starnes, of Atlanta, and R. T. Starnes, of Birmingham; six daughters, Miss Allie Hawes, Mrs. Paul Roland, Mrs. G. C. Legg and Mrs. C. R. Walker, of Atlanta; Mrs. W. A. Wills, of Memphis, and Mrs. Dewitt Starnes, of Macon; four granddaughters, W. G. Starnes, Jr., Frances Starnes, J. L. Starnes, Jr., and Lesley Starnes.

WALL STREET OPINION

"Electric power consumption is greater than ever in history. February showed an increase of 10 per cent over the corresponding month last year. Significant is the fact that power consumption is growing much more rapidly in the South than in the North. More northern capital is going into the South than ever before. So there you see the railroads and things industrially in the South. They are destined to grow rapidly over the next ten years."

Going a step further than the Wall Street Journal we say keep your eyes on Atlanta real estate, the fastest growing city in the fastest growing section of the United States.
